

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE NORTHERN MARIANA ISLANDS

JOHN H. DAVIS, JR.,

Plaintiff,

v.

COMMONWEALTH ELECTION
COMMISSION; FRANCES M. SABLAN,
Chairperson of Commonwealth Election
Commission; ROBERT A. GUERRERO,
Executive Director of Commonwealth
Election Commission; and BENIGNO R.
FITIAL, CNMI Governor,

Defendants.

Case No.: 1-12-CV-00001

MEMORANDUM DECISION AND ORDER OF DISMISSAL WITHOUT PREJUDICE
FOR LACK OF SUBJECT MATTER JURISDICTION

I. INTRODUCTION

Plaintiff John H. Davis, Jr. (“Davis”) asks the Court to permanently enjoin the chairperson and the executive director of the Commonwealth Election Commission (“CEC” or “the Commission”) from denying him the right to vote on any initiative to amend or repeal Article XII of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands (“Commonwealth” or “CNMI”). Article XII restricts ownership of permanent and long-term interests in real property within the Commonwealth to persons of Northern Marianas descent

1 (“NMD”).<sup>1</sup> In 1999, Article XVIII of the Commonwealth constitution was amended to prohibit
 2 non-NMDs who otherwise are qualified voters from voting on initiatives to change Article XII.
 3 In 2011, Governor Benigno R. Fitial signed Public Law (“P.L.”) 17-40, which directed CEC to 4 maintain a registry of NMDs. The Commission has promulgated rules and regulations to 5 implement P.L. 17-40.

 7 Davis, a non-NMD who is otherwise qualified to vote in the Commonwealth, asserts that 8 by enforcing Article XVIII § 5(c) and P.L. 17-40 to restrict his right to vote, Defendants violate
 9 his civil rights as guaranteed by the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments of the United States
 10 Constitution. He claims for injunctive relief under 42 U.S.C. §§ 1971 and 1983, in the form of a 11 declaratory judgment pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2201 and 2202 (Declaratory Judgment Act).
 12 Defendants Frances M. Sablan, Chairperson of CEC; Robert A. Guerrero, Executive Director of 13 CEC; and Benigno R. Fitial, Governor of the CNMI (collectively “Defendants”), maintain that 14 the federal constitutional protections do not apply in this instance or, alternatively, that the 15 challenged Commonwealth laws do not violate Davis’s federal constitutional rights. Defendants
 16 also assert that the case must be dismissed because Davis lacks standing and the issue is not ripe 17 for adjudication. For the reasons stated below, the Court finds that Davis lacks standing and the 18 matter is not ripe for decision, and dismisses the case without reaching the merits.

21 II. BACKGROUND

22 Even though the merits of the case will not be considered, a thorough review of the 23 background is necessary to understand why the case, in its current posture, must be dismissed.

24 A. Land Alienation Restrictions

25 On February 15, 1975, representatives of the United States and the Northern Mariana 26

27
 28 <sup>1</sup> The constitutionality of Article XII has been affirmed, see Wabot v. Villacrusis, 958 F.2d 1450 (9th Cir. 1992), and is not at issue in this case.

1 Islands signed the Covenant to Establish a Commonwealth of the Northern Marianas Islands in 2 Political Union with the United States of America (“Covenant”). The Covenant was approved
 3 by the Mariana Islands District Legislature and by Northern Marianas voters in a plebescite, and 4 then was ratified by the Congress of the United States on March 24, 1976. P.L. 94-241; 90 Stat.
 5 263, codified at 48 U.S.C. § 1801 note.

 7 Section 805 of the Covenant “provides that, notwithstanding federal law, the 8 Commonwealth government shall regulate the alienation of local land to restrict the acquisition
 9 of long-term interests to persons of Northern Mariana Island descent.” Wabol v. Villacrusis, 958
 10 F.2d 1450, 1452 (9th Cir. 1992). The text of Section 805 reads, in pertinent part:

11 . . . notwithstanding the other provisions of this Covenant, or those provisions of 12 the Constitution, treaties or laws of the United States applicable to the Northern 13 Mariana Islands, the Government of the Northern Mariana Islands, in view of the 14 importance of the ownership of land for the culture and traditions of the people of 15 the Northern Mariana Islands, and in order to protect them against exploitation 16 and to promote their economic advancement and self-sufficiency . . . will until 17 twenty-five years after the termination of the Trusteeship Agreement, and may thereafter, regulate the alienation of permanent and long-term interests in real property so as to restrict the acquisition of such interests to persons of Northern Mariana Islands descent[.] (emphasis added)

18 Section 501(a) of the Covenant makes the Fifteenth Amendment and section 1 of the 19 Fourteenth Amendment of the United States Constitution applicable within the CNMI. The 20 Fourteenth Amendment declares that it is unlawful for any state to “deprive any person of life, 21 liberty or property, without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the 22 equal protection of the laws.” U.S. Const. amend. XIV § 1. The Fifteenth Amendment protects 23 the right to vote: “The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or 24 abridged by the United States or by any state on account of race, color, or previous condition of 25 servitude.”
 26
 27

28 The framers of the Covenant understood that the land alienation restrictions of Section

1 805 may conflict with certain federally guaranteed rights. They wished “to make clear that under 2 no circumstances can anything in Section 501 or, for that matter, any provision in the Covenant,
 3 have the effect of prohibiting the local government from imposing land alienation restrictions 4 under Section 805[.]” Marianas Political Status Commission, Section by Section Analysis of the 5 Covenant to Establish a Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands 47 (1975). They 6 therefore expressly stated in the Covenant that the applicability of federal laws is “without 7 prejudice to the validity of and the power of the Congress of the United States to consent to . . .
 8 Section 805 . . .” Covenant § 501(b).

10 Article XII of the Commonwealth Constitution implements Covenant § 805. See Wabol, 11 958 F.2d at 1452. It restricts the “acquisition of permanent and long-term interests in real 12 property within the Commonwealth . . . to persons of Northern Marianas descent.” N.M.I.

14 Const. art. XII § 1. Section 4 of Article XII defines a person of Northern Marianas descent as

15 a person who is a citizen or national of the United States and who is of at least 16 one-quarter Northern Marianas Chamorro or Northern Marianas Carolinian blood
 17 or a combination thereof or an adopted child of a person of Northern Marianas
 18 descent if adopted while under the age of eighteen years. For purposes of 19 determining Northern Marianas descent, a person shall be considered to be a full-20 blooded Northern Marianas Chamorro or Northern Marianas Carolinian if that person was born or domiciled in the Northern Mariana Islands by 1950 and was a citizen of the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands before the termination of the Trusteeship with respect to the Commonwealth.

21 In 1992, the Ninth Circuit was called upon to determine “whether the constitutional 22 guarantee of equal protection of the laws limits the ability of the United States and the 23 Commonwealth to impose race-based restrictions on the acquisition of permanent and long-term 24 interests in Commonwealth land.” Wabol, 958 F.2d at 1451. The court held that under the 25 territories clause (U.S. Const. art. IV § 3), Congress had the power to exclude Covenant § 805
 26 from the reach of the Fourteenth Amendment’s equal protection clause. Id. at 1462. It observed
 27 that only “fundamental” constitutional rights necessarily apply in the territories. Id. at 1459. It 28

1 found that “the asserted constitutional guarantee against discrimination in the acquisition of long-
 2 term interests in land” was not fundamental in the international sense and therefore could be 3 excluded from operation in the CNMI. Id. at 1460, 1462.

4 B. Amendment of Article XII

5 In 1947, the United States entered into an agreement with the United Nations to 6 administer in trust the Northern Marianas and other Pacific islands formerly mandated to Japan.
 7 See id. at 1458. The Trusteeship Agreement was terminated by presidential proclamation on 8 November 3, 1986. Proclamation No. 5564, 51 Fed. Reg. 40,399 (Nov. 7, 1986). Section 805 of 9 the Covenant mandated that restrictions on alienation of permanent and long-term interests in 10 land remain in place until at least 25 years after the termination of the Trusteeship Agreement.
 11 Thus, since November 2011, the Commonwealth has had the power, in conformity with Section
 12 805, to amend its constitution so as to modify or repeal the land alienation restrictions of Article
 13 XII.

14 Amendments to the Commonwealth Constitution “may be proposed by constitutional 15 convention, legislative initiative or popular initiative.” N.M.I. Const. art. XVIII § 1. By act of 16 the legislature or by initiative petition, the question of whether to hold a constitutional
 17 convention to propose amendments to the Constitution may be submitted to the voters. Id. §
 18 2(a),(b). Alternatively, specific amendments may be proposed by initiative petition, “signed by 19 at least fifty percent of the persons qualified to vote in the Commonwealth and at least twenty-20 five percent of the persons qualified to vote in each senatorial district.” Id. § 4(a). All proposed 21 constitutional amendments, after certification by the Commonwealth’s attorney general, must be 22 “submitted to the Commission not more than one hundred twenty (120) days and not less than 23
 25
 26
 27
 28

1 ninety (90) days before the day of the election.” 1 CMC § 6351. Ratification of a proposed
 2 amendment requires approval “by a majority of the votes cast.” N.M.I. Const. art. XVIII § 5(b).<sup>2</sup>

3 C. Voter Eligibility

4 Article VII of the Commonwealth Constitution sets forth the qualifications of voters.<sup>3</sup>
 5 Any U.S. citizen or national who on the date of the election is at least 18 years of age, a resident
 6 and domiciliary of the Commonwealth for the statutorily provided period, and not serving a 7 felony sentence or of unsound mind, is eligible to vote. N.M.I. Const. art. VII § 1.

9 In 1999, voters approved Senate Legislative Initiative 11-1, which proposed to amend
 10 Section 5 of Article XVIII by adding a new subsection. Subsection c reads:

11 In the case of a proposed amendment to Article XII of this Constitution, the word 12 “voters” as used in subsection 5(a) above shall be limited to eligible voters under 13 Article VII who are also persons of Northern Marianas descent as described in 14 Article XII, Section 4, and the term “votes cast” as used in subsection 5(b) shall mean the votes cast by such voters.

15 On April 21, 2011, Governor Benigno R. Fitial signed into law House Bill 17-57, HD1.
 16 The new law, P.L. 17-40, established a Northern Marianas Descent Registry (“NMDR”) within 17 the Commonwealth Election Commission and mandated the production of an Official Northern 18 Marianas Descent Identification Card “that will be issued only to persons who are qualified 19 pursuant to Article XII, § 4 of the Northern Mariana Islands Constitution.” P.L. 17-40 § 2. The 20 executive director of CEC is tasked with managing the “registry and activities of the NMDR.”
 21 Id. § 2(b). The primary purpose of the NMDR is to serve as “the official registry of persons of 22 Northern Marianas descent in any and all elections . . . that requires [sic] only persons of 23 Northern Marianas descent to vote in such election pursuant to the said Article XVIII, § 5 of the
 26

27 <sup>2</sup> For amendments proposed by constitutional convention or by popular initiative, ratification additionally 28 requires approval by “at least two-thirds of the votes cast in each of two senatorial districts.” Id.

1 Northern Marianas Islands Constitution . . .” Id. § 2(c)(1). No form of NMD identification
 2 issued by an agency other than CEC may be used for purposes of voting on proposed Article XII
 3 amendments. Id. § 2(c)(4). To accomplish its task, CEC may require the local hospital and local 4 courts “to provide a copy of the original birth record showing the natural parents or ancestors of 5 the person registering. Such birth record shall identify the nationality and race of the parents, i.e.
 6 NMD Chamorro or Carolinian or part NMD, etc.” Id. § 2(c)(5).

8 The Commission has promulgated rules and regulations to effectuate the purposes of P.L.
 9 17-40. See 33(9) N. Mar. I. Reg. 31918 et seq. (Sept. 26, 2011).<sup>4</sup> To register for the NMDR, a 10 person must complete a Registration Affidavit and execute an oath, under penalty of perjury, 11 attesting that he or she is of Northern Marianas descent as defined in Article XII § 4. Id. at 12 31918, 31930. If the registration clerk believes that a person is not qualified to register, the clerk 13 shall allow the person to fill out the affidavit but “immediately inform the Executive Director or 14 a Commission staff person that the person attempting to register might not be eligible to register
 15 as an NMD in the Commonwealth.” Id. The challenged registration then goes to a hearing 16 before the Commission. Id.

19 As of the April 26 motions hearing in this matter, at least five initiatives regarding Article
 20 XII were pending in the Commonwealth legislature. (See Second Amended Complaint (“SAC”), 21 ECF No. 26, § 27; Answer, ECF No. 28, § 27.) No initiative, however, had yet qualified for the 22 next general election on November 6, 2012, and no special election to vote on an initiative was 23 scheduled. Since the hearing, the parties have not filed any supplemental papers advising that a 24 petition has qualified for the ballot.

28 <sup>4</sup> The rules and regulations and the Registration Affidavit are available online at the Commission’s website, at http://www.votecnmi.gov.mp/downloads/NMDR\_Regs.pdf.

1 It is undisputed that Plaintiff Davis is a U.S. citizen and a resident of the CNMI; that he is
2 eligible to vote pursuant to Article VII of the Commonwealth Constitution and is a registered
3 voter; and that he is not of Northern Marianas descent. (Opposition (“Opp.”), ECF 36 at 9.) At 4 the hearing, the parties stipulated that it would be futile for Davis to attempt to register with the 5 Commission for the NMDR.

6 7 III. PROCEDURAL POSTURE

8 On January 3, 2012, Plaintiff Davis filed his initial Complaint (ECF No. 1) and later that 9 same day filed an Amended Complaint (ECF No. 2). Davis thereafter voluntarily dismissed
10 Defendants Eliceo D. Cabrera and Paul A. Manglona from the lawsuit. (See ECF No. 9.) On 11 March 22, the Court dismissed the Amended Complaint for lack of subject matter jurisdiction
12 and gave Davis fourteen days in which to amend further to cure the jurisdictional deficiencies.
13 (See Decision and Order, ECF No. 25.) On March 26, Davis filed a Second Amended Complaint
14 (ECF No. 26) setting forth seven claims for relief. Prior to the motions hearing, the Court
15 granted Defendant CEC’s motion for summary judgment and dismissed CEC as not a proper
16 defendant on any of Davis’s claims. (See CEC Order, ECF No. 40.)

18
19 The matter is now before the Court on the remaining parties’ cross-motions for summary
20 judgment on all claims.

21 IV. DISCUSSION

22 A. Standing

23
24 A court must dismiss an action if at any time it determines that it lacks subject matter
25 jurisdiction. Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(h)(3). A “necessary component” of subject matter jurisdiction is 26 Article III standing. Palmdale Hills Prop., LLC v. Lehman Commer. Paper, Inc. (In re Palmdale
27
28

1 Hills Prop., LLC), 654 F.3d 868, 873 (9th Cir. 2011). To have constitutional standing, Davis
 2 must satisfy three conditions:

3 First, the plaintiff must have suffered an “injury in fact” – an invasion of a legally 4 protected interest which is (a) concrete and particularized, and (b) “actual or 5 imminent, not ‘conjectural’ or ‘hypothetical.’” Second, there must be a causal 6 connection between the injury and the conduct complained of – the injury has to 7 be “fairly . . . trace[able] to the challenged action of the defendant, and not . . .
 8 th[e] result [of] the independent action of some third party not before the court.”
 9 Third, it must be “likely,” as opposed to merely “speculative,” that the injury will 10 be “redressed by a favorable decision.”

11 Lujan v. Defenders of Wildlife, 504 U.S. 555, 560–61 (1992) (internal citations and quotation 12 marks omitted). Clearly, the second and third conditions are present. Davis’s claimed injury is 13 directly traceable to the application of Commonwealth laws and regulations that restrict voting
 14 on Article XII initiatives. A favorable court ruling will restore his ability to vote on such 15 matters.

16 The operative question is whether Davis has suffered or is about to suffer an injury in 17 fact. As a duly registered voter, Davis has a legally protected interest in exercising his right to 18 vote. The injury from not being permitted to vote on an Article XII initiative is concrete and 19 particular. Because he is not of Northern Marianas descent, Article XII prohibits him from 20 owning land in fee simple. The outcome of any vote to amend Article XII may affect his 21 potential rights to own real property in the place he has made his home. Davis is injured if he is 22 unlawfully deprived of the ultimate say a citizen has in political affairs: a vote.

23 The imminence of such a ballot initiative is suggested by the Commonwealth’s own 24 recent preparations for an Article XII vote by passing P.L. 17-40 and by promulgating and 25 effectuating regulations to register persons of Northern Marianas descent.<sup>5</sup> The Commission’s
 26

27
 28 <sup>5</sup> While the government may put the NMD registry to additional uses, its primary purpose is to register NMDs to vote. Creation and maintenance of the registry were placed in the hands of the 1 regulations require that a person applying to register swear upon penalty of perjury that he or she 2 is of Northern Marianas descent. Thus, Commonwealth officials today are requiring otherwise

3 qualified NMD voters to take affirmative steps to secure their right to vote on Article XII
4 initiatives.

5         Still, it is not clear that the inability of non-NMDs to register is an injury in fact. If Davis
6 were to prevail on the merits of this case, the Court would not order the Commission to let him
7 register as an NMD, but would declare that he does not have to register as an NMD in order to 8 vote. Because Davis is already registered to vote, he would not have to take any action to benefit
9 from the ruling, other than to show up at the polls and cast a ballot if he so chooses. The injury 10 would only occur, if ever, on the date of the election.

11         The analysis might be different with a different plaintiff. Organizations that mobilize to 12 register minority voters may suffer an injury in fact if the allegedly unlawful restrictions on 13 registration impair their ability to allocate resources for registration drives and to educate 14 prospective voters. See, e.g. Fla. State Conference of NAACP v. Browning, 522 F.3d 1153,
15 1165–66 (11th Cir. 2008); cf. Havens Realty Corp. v. Coleman, 455 U.S. 363 (drain on nonprofit
16 corporation’s limited resources caused by realty company’s unlawful housing practices created
17 injury in fact). Davis, however, is not hampered prior to the actual balloting. He may participate 18 fully in any campaign to change Article XII. The Commonwealth laws at issue in this case do 19 not impair his right to speak out on Article XII, to contribute his time and money to efforts to 20 defeat or pass an Article XII initiative, or even to sign a petition to put an initiative on the ballot.

23
24
25
26         commission that conducts elections. The Commission’s regulations state explicitly, “An NMD
27 registers to vote by completing the affidavit . . . and providing all of the information as required
28 by law, and executing same under the penalty of perjury.” 33(9) N. Mar. I. Reg. 031918 (Sept.
26, 2011).

1 See “Validity of a signature of a person who is not of Northern Marianas Descent on a popular
2 initiative petition proposing to amend Art. XII of the Commonwealth Constitution,” A.G. Legal 3 Opinion No. 2012-02, 34(4) N. Mar. I. Reg. 032404 (Apr. 29, 2012).

4 Davis’s injury is not actual, because it does not occur until he is denied the right to vote
5 or his ballot is disallowed. It is not imminent, because no petition is on the November ballot.
6 Davis therefore cannot show an injury in fact, and lacks standing.

8 B. Ripeness

9 The inquiry is incomplete, however, without discussion of a jurisdictional issue closely 10 related to injury in fact: namely, ripeness. Even if Davis’s injury were imminent so as to satisfy 11 the requirements of standing, the court must nevertheless decline to exercise jurisdiction if the 12 matter is not ripe for review. Ripeness doctrine “is both drawn both from Article III limitations 13 on judicial power and from prudential reasons for refusing to exercise jurisdiction.” Nat’l Park
14 Hospitality Ass’n v. Dep’t of Interior, 538 U.S. 803, 808 (2003) (internal quotation marks 15 omitted). Ripeness is “peculiarly a question of timing . . .” Regional Rail Reorganization Act
16 Cases, 419 U.S. 102, 140 (1974). A claim is “not ripe for adjudication if it rests upon contingent
17 future events that may not occur as anticipated, or indeed may not occur at all[,]” or if it is “too 18 speculative whether the problem [plaintiff] presents will ever need solving.” Texas v. United 19 States, 523 U.S. 296, 300, 302 (U.S. 1998) (internal citation omitted). However, “[w]here the 20 inevitability of the operation of a statute against certain individuals is patent, it is irrelevant to the 21 existence of a justiciable controversy that there will be a time delay before the disputed 22 provisions will come into effect.” Regional Rail, 419 U.S. at 143. Where, as here, plaintiff is 23 asking the court to declare his rights under the law, Article III “requires that there be a 24 ‘substantial controversy . . . of sufficient immediacy and reality to warrant the issuance of a 25
26
27
28

1 declaratory judgment.”” Aydin Corp. v. Union of India, 940 F.2d 527, 528 (9th Cir. 1991)
 2 (original emphasis) (quoting Maryland Casualty Co. v. Pacific Coal & Oil Co., 312 U.S. 270, 3 273 (1941)).

4 By its emphasis on the contingency or speculativeness of plaintiff’s injury, the ripeness
 5 inquiry “overlaps with the ‘injury in fact’ analysis for Article III standing.” Wolfson v.
 6 Brammer, 616 F.3d 1045, 1058 (9th Cir. 2010). The two inquiries are “largely the same[.]” Id.
 7 The distinction is that while injury in fact, as a component of standing, focuses on “who is a 8 proper party to litigate a particular matter, ripeness addresses when that litigation may occur.”
 9 Lee v. Oregon, 107 F.3d 1382, 1387 (9th Cir. 1997) (original emphasis). In particular, ripeness
 10 is at issue when a party seeks pre-enforcement review of a statute or regulation. Id. If the injury
 11 in fact is “certainly impending, that is enough.” Regional Rail, 419 U.S. at 143.
 12

13 To determine ripeness, a court must evaluate (1) the “fitness of the issues for judicial 14 decision” and (2) the “hardship to the parties of withholding court consideration.” Texas v.
 15 United States, 523 U.S. at 301 (quoting Abbott Laboratories v. Gardner, 387 U.S. 136, 149 16 (1967)). A matter is fit if it presents a “purely legal” issue. Abbott Laboratories, 387 U.S. at 17 149. The court should consider, however, whether “[t]he operation of the statute is better 18 grasped when viewed in light of a particular application.” Id. at 301. A case may not be ripe if 19 the court “would benefit from further factual development of the issues presented.” Ohio
 20 Forestry Ass’n v. Sierra Club, 523 U.S. 726, 733 (1998).
 21

22 The issues in this case are fit for judicial decision. They deal almost exclusively with 23 questions of constitutional law. The established facts, that Davis is a duly registered voter who is 24 not of Northern Marianas descent, are sufficient to grasp that if Davis tries to vote on an Article
 25 XII initiative, he will either be prevented from voting or, having somehow managed to cast a 26
 27
 28

1 vote, his ballot could be invalidated. Further development of the record, as may occur through
2 the passage of time, is not necessary.

3 As to hardship, defendants assert that Davis's claim is not ripe because no initiatives to 4 amend Article XII have yet qualified for the ballot. The contingent future event – a popular vote
5 on a ballot initiative – may not occur as anticipated, in this election cycle, and indeed may never 6 occur at all. Until a petition is certified, "Plaintiff's frustration is entirely based on a hypothetical
7 situation." (Opp. at 17.)

9 This argument has merit. As likely as it seems that in the not-too-distant future an Article
10 XII initiative will be put to a vote, it cannot be said that a ballot initiative is inevitable. In 11 Regional Rail, a takings challenge to a congressional act that would, at an indeterminate date in 12 the future, consolidate private rail properties was ripe because "the implementation of the Rail
13 Act will now lead inexorably to the final conveyance . . ." Regional Rail, 419 U.S. at 140
14 (emphasis added). In contrast, no constitutional or statutory provision requires the people of the 15 CNMI ever to vote on modifying or repealing Article XII. While Davis may find it distressing to 16 contemplate that under Commonwealth law, if an Article XII initiative gets on the ballot he will 17 not be permitted to vote on it, he suffers no hardship until an initiative is "certainly impending."
18

20 It is now barely more than four months before the November general election. The 21 thirty-day window for presenting Article XII petitions to the Commission is about to open, and 22 close. If a petition is presented, Davis will surely have standing and the matter will be ripe for 23 adjudication.

V. CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, the Court dismisses this case for lack of subject matter jurisdiction. The cross-motions for summary judgment are, therefore, mooted. The dismissal is without prejudice, as the Court has not reached the merits.

SO ORDERED this 26th day of June, 2012.
